Chemicals

Chemicals found in your municipal water supply can cause numerous health issues. All chemicals found in your water can be ingested when drinking tap water or absorbed through your skin when showering or bathing. Ongoing exposure to harmful chemicals can lead to negative health effects.

Heavy Metals

Heavy metals such as lead can cause many health problems in individuals of all ages when consumed through municipal tap water. Lead is a metal that can enter your home through lead pipes or because it occurs naturally in water sources such as lakes and rivers. This metal can cause various types of adverse health effects over an extended period of time.
